High Rollers at UCC Foundation Gala

A Showboat River Cruise was the theme, Public Service Electric and Gas Company was the honoree, and once again playing casino games of chance was the favored activity in the Richel Commons on November 3, 2007. Intent at the black-jack table are (l. to r.) Adam Buchsbaum, Mary Fernandez, Jadwiga Lobrow, and Foundation Trustee and UCC Governor Chester Lobrow, a 1983 UCC Institute for Intensive English alumnus. The 15th annual Gala raised almost $140,000 to benefit UCC students. Save the date - October 25, 2008 - for the 75th Anniversary of UCC Diamond Gala!

HOLIDAY BOUTIQUE RAISED SCHOLARSHIP FUNDS

On December 2nd the Richel Commons was lively with 80 craft and retail vendors and holiday shoppers during this third annual event organized by the UCC Alumni Association. The hard-working Boutique Committee was chaired by Karen (Schmidt) Lledo'97.

UCC RECEIVES LARGEST GRANT EVER—

To Help Hispanic and Other Low-Income Students Succeed In College

The US Department of Education has awarded the College a five-year Title V grant of $2,788,460 to implement researched-based strategies designed to increase the academic success and retention rate of low-income students. As part of the Hispanic Serving Institutions grant program, this grant is the largest single grant in the College's history; fewer than 30 Title V grants were awarded nationally. The new programs will be part of a college-wide initiative within the Center for Student Success under the direction of Dr. Jose Adames, Assistant Vice President and Provost of the Plainfield Campus.

The planning of these new initiatives involved input from faculty and staff gathered over an eight-month period, as well as research of best practices in the field of higher education. This multi-year project will use a holistic approach to address the academic needs of students during and after their first year.

A central component is the establishment of Learning Communities/Paired Courses whereby designated sections of UCC 101 (the first semester seminar) will be paired with developmental math, developmental English and English 111 courses. Other activities are: (1) increased Student Development Services that include supplemental instruction in high risk courses, professional and peer tutors, administration of the Community College Survey of Student Engagement and on-line counseling; (2) Professional Development Programs for faculty and staff that will enhance teaching skills and knowledge of effective student learning strategies; (3) development of a Retention Strategies Handbook; and (4) dissemination of project outcomes through publication of a monograph of research findings.

According to Dr. Adames, "All of these activities are designed to improve student learning strategies in ways that will positively impact student academic success and retention."

Endowment Challenge: A unique aspect of this Title V grant is the inclusion of a $125,000 challenge grant to create an endowment to advance the academic achievement of low-income students.

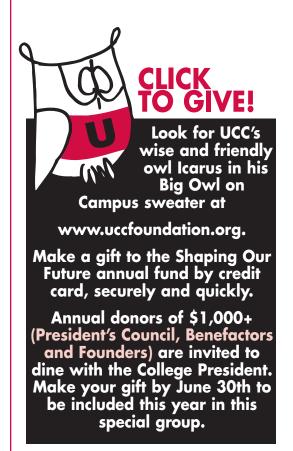

Every dollar raised for the endowment will be matched dollar-for-dollar by the Department of Education, up to a total of $125,000. James R. Perry, a long-time College Trustee and member of the Association of Community College Board of Trustees, has made the first contribution toward this endowment challenge.

To learn more about how you can participate in helping to meet this challenge, please contact Linda S. Moore, Esq., Executive Director of Development at (908) 709-7113.

Athletic Hall of Fame

The ninth group of stellar UCC athletes was inducted in the fall. Posing with Dr. Brown (l. to r.) are Joey Morse '96, Pittsburgh, PA (Basketball), Debbie Westrol-Shrubsall '82, Linden, NJ, (Basketball), and Eileen M. Jackson '96, Centerport, NY (Basketball 1976-78). The awards were presented by former coaches Kevin Duggan, Donna Herra '85 and Fred Perry '69.

Charitable Gift Annuities...

It's Good to RECEIVE ... as Well as to GIVE

When you contribute to the Union County College Foundation in exchange for a charitable gift annuity, you do even more than provide important support for UCC students. You also are assured that you will receive regular payments of a fixed amount for the rest of your life. In some cases, your immediate cash flow can actually increase when you establish a gift annuity.

And because your gift benefits the UCC Foundation, you end up giving away less in taxes, due to a combination of factors:

- Part of your contribution qualifies as a taxdeductible donation;
- For a number of years, a portion of the payments you receive will be tax-free;
- It is possible to reduce capital gains taxes, by funding your annuity with appreciated securities.
- The UCC Foundation follows rates of the American Council on Gift Annuities.

Some sample current rates for individuals and couples are shown below:

One Beneticiary Age Rate	Two Beneticiaries Ages Rate
65 6.0%	65/655.6%
70 6.5%	70/70-715.9%
75 7.1%	75/756.3%
80 8.0%	80/806.9%
85 9.5%	85/857.9%

This is a Test

TRUE FALSE

I would rather let the State decide how to distribute my estate than to make those decisions myself.

I would rather have an outdated estate plan that inade-quately expresses my desires than take steps to bring the documents up to date.

I would rather pay estate taxes, if required, than make a deductible bequest to the Union County College Foundation.

How did you do? If you answered 'true' to any of these questions, please do not proceed. If you answered otherwise, consider contacting an attorney to draft a will, or to update your estate plans. And please consider including the Union County College Foundation in your plans to generations of UCC students.

Millennial Students Join Four Age Cohorts at UCC

by Professor Toby Marx

I am an authentic Baby Boomer who grew up knowing that society was "talking 'bout my generation," as the song goes. Today I teach the group that will surpass the Boomers in numbers, those born from 1982 to 2000, the "Millennials" (also known as Generation Y, Echo Boomers and the Internet Generation).

Today UCC students span five age cohorts. The "G.I. Generation" (1900-1924) appear most often in L.I.F.E. (Learning Is ForEver) classes for seniors, but intrepid students from the "Greatest Generation" do take classes with collegeage students. Shaped by the Great Depression and World War II, they tend to be hardworking and loyal, and are the first generation to experience the benefits of a prolonged lifespan. The "Silent Generation" (1925-1945) is a much smaller group who also attend L.I.F.E. Center and other classes. They are often looking for a second career during retirement.

Many "Baby Boomers" (1946-1964) are students because of switching careers or life events such as divorce or an empty nest. Boomers grew up in optimistic and economically good times. In the largest cohort ever born, they have seen society reshape itself repeatedly to meet their needs. Older Boomers include idealists who spoke out against the Vietnam War, racism, sexism, and other injustices. Although the Boomers are preparing to live even longer and healthier lives than their parents, not having lived through the Depression has made them less careful with money, so many will have to postpone retirement.

"Generation X" (1965-1981) students have experienced much more diversity, and most are more accepting of non-conformists. They are more cynical and pessimistic, having reached maturity in a time of societal and political scandals, and 9/11. They come to UCC wanting practical skills that will help them professionally. The Gen-Xers expect not to stay in one company throughout their careers and to have many jobs and perhaps several careers. They worry that Social Security will not be around for them, so they are more aware than their parents had been of the need to save for the future.

Today's typical college-age undergraduates are the youngest UCC students, born in 1982 or later - the "Millennials". Most incoming freshmen, born in 1988 or 1989, do not remember the Soviet Union and have only known two Presidents. They have always had cell phones, computers and the Internet. Despite 9/11, Virginia Tech and other school shootings, and the Wars in Afghanistan and Iraq, they are more optimistic than Gen-Xers, feel a duty to help (for example, in the recovery from Hurricane Katrina), and are confident they will succeed.

Today's typical college-age undergraduates are the youngest UCC students, born in 1982 or later - the "Millennials".

They are the first generation to be "digital natives," feeling totally comfortable with all forms of technology. They expect to use technology in learning, and may ask to make their presentations via PowerPoint (computer slide shows).

They are well ahead of their Baby Boomer professors in using emerging technologies, and this sometimes creates discomfort in the classroom. We all know the stereotype of the teen typing a school paper while Instant Messaging many friends on the computer and also using a cell phone to text message or talk to other friends, all the while listening to music on an iPod with headphones! Imagine these multi-taskers in a classroom with only one thing happening – the professor lecturing.

Their boredom can translate into lack of attention or even sneakily text messaging. Public schools have learned to harness all this energy in active learning projects. Colleges are discovering that they need to do likewise.

Although Millennial students function well in active learning classrooms and have good technology skills, professors and parents worry about some elements of their lifestyles, such as their tendency to look for instant gratification. Many do not read books or newspapers, preferring to get news online in brief bites. Some spend a lot of time playing video games or on websites like MySpace.

The world of email and instant messaging depends on shortcuts and does not require accurate spelling or grammar. We are beginning to see this creep into papers (R U? = Are you?). While students have easier access to more information for research, cheating has become easier. (On the other hand, catching cheating has become easier too!)

Professors and researchers are considering to what extent they need to help students to change and grow, and to what extent they must change their teaching methods to match the Millennial learning style. Do students need to be forced to read books, to develop a thorough approach to research, to work on a longer attention span? Or do teachers need to incorporate online videos, interactive classrooms and outside activities? One important need is to teach students how to do research online and judge the worth of what they find. The value of the Internet is that people all over the world can share ideas and knowledge. The disadvantage is that no one is evaluating the accuracy of online information.

At UCC we have many young students who do not fit the Millennial student mold, who cannot afford to buy their own computers. Many are immigrants, or the children of immigrants, who have other issues, such as the need to improve their English

66

A community college is a learning community expected to be all things to all people.

proficiency, the lack of support from family members who did not go to college, and cultural expectations (especially for women) about whether they should be here at all.

A community college is a learning community expected to be all things to all people. The differing needs of five cohorts of students, especially the "college age" group, make our task at UCC an ongoing challenge. Although we may not always meet everyone's needs, we always strive to serve our diverse student population. In the process, we learn and grow ourselves.

INFINEUM SUPPORTS UCC SCIENCE LABS

Elizabeth Garcia, Manager of Public Affairs at Infineum USA LP in Linden, visited a chemistry lab this fall and observed students conducting experiments. Infineum grant funds provided sophisticated equipment, such as the Melting Point Apparatus, which students use to determine the melting point of the chemical products they synthesize in the lab and to calibrate thermometers. A scientist herself, Mrs. Garcia is the new Chair of the UCC Board of Governors.

UCC CELEBRATES SOCCER CHAMPIONS!

The Men's Soccer Team ended the season with a fantastic record of 22 wins and 1 loss. In addition to finishing third place in the nation, they are Garden State Athletic Conference Champions, Region XIX Champions, and District 4 Champions. The team set several UCC records, including 128 goals for the season and a .956 winning percentage. Alex Louis is Head Coach and Peter Falloon is Assistant Coach of these soccer champs, posing here with Dr. Brown before leaving for a tournament.

Help Plan Year-Long Celebration FOR UCC'S 75TH ANNIVERSARY!

The 75th anniversary celebration will span the next academic year, beginning in October 2008 with a Convocation featuring a noted guest speaker and culminating with the 2009 Commencement.

We will reflect on this College's unique history since 1933, while looking ahead to a challenging future. While Union County Junior College (Ucey Jucey) has grown from a struggling institution focused on the study of Liberal Arts to the distinguished comprehensive community college that is Union County College today, it has remained true to its values of access, opportunity, excellence and innovation.

Alumni and friends are invited to join the College community in planning this year-long celebration, which is chaired by Victor M. Richel, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, and a Trustee for 25 years.

The sub-committees are: Decades & Celebratory Events, Founders Day & Academic Conference, History & Archives, and Recognition. To volunteer to help UCC "salute the past and welcome the future" by joining a committee, please call Kathy Giannecchini at (908) 709-7506 or email uccfound@ucc.edu.

The Recognition Committee solicits nominations of individuals from any point in our history to be honored throughout the year as 75th Anniversary Honorees.

There will also be Memorial Honorees. Nominees are sought from five categories: Alumni, Boards, Faculty, Friends and Staff. The ideal honoree, depending upon the category, will have demonstrated:

UNION

Saluting the past

... welcoming the future

- Recognized value to UCC and its mission,
- Achievements that have brought credit to the College,
- A record of distinction and accomplishment in his/her field, or
